Ghosts, Spirits, and the Afterlife

A literary discussion

Join four New England authors for an informative and fun panel discussion of the challenges and opportunities of writing about ghosts, both real and imagined. The authors will share their experiences with a variety of approaches, beliefs, and customs ranging from the lighthearted to the downright scary, from real-life encounters to those that are completely fictitious. The presentation will be followed by a book signing and informal reception in which audience members will have a chance to chat with the authors. Light refreshments will be served.

Terri Bruce (terribruce.net) writes science fiction and fantasy stories from a haunted house in New Hampshire. Her debut novel, Hereafter, is about a woman stuck on earth as a ghost, searching for a way to cross over to the afterlife.

Chelsea M. Cameron (leftandwrite.blogspot.com) is a YA/NA paranormal romance writer from Maine. Her latest novel, Whisper, is about a girl who can communicate with ghosts.

Renee Mallett (reneemallett.com) is the New Hampshire-based author of several non-fiction books about folklore and the paranormal. She has written a series of books about haunted locations in New England, including Strange New Hampshire and Ghosts of Portsmouth.

Carole Ann Moleti (caroleannmoleti.com) is a New York City based science fiction and fantasy writer. Her work includes Haunted: Ten Tales of Ghosts and a paranormal romance series set on Cape Cod.
